

Portland, Ore. — Congressman David Wu's second television ad of the 2010 cycle highlights his work creating jobs in Oregon's 1st Congressional District.

As they fill out their ballots, voters in the 1st Congressional District will have the opportunity to support David Wu's proven track record of putting Oregon families and small businesses on the road to recovery.

"David Wu has spent his career helping entrepreneurs turn cutting-edge ideas into new products, services, and jobs," says Julia Louise Krahe, Wu campaign spokesperson. "Both as a high-tech lawyer and as a member of Congress, David has made growing Oregon's economy his number one priority. By contrast, Rob Cornilles said that he would have voted against legislation that ended tax loopholes for companies that ship jobs overseas and preserved 2,000 jobs for Oregon teachers. That's not the kind of leadership that will create the high-wage, private-sector jobs that middle-class families deserve.

"Oregonians know that David has been a hard-working representative of their values, and many of them also know that he's a bit of a technology geek. This spunky ad should be a nice break from all the negativity on the airwaves and help voters get to know David even better."
